CONFERENCE

September 11-14 2023 / Trieste, Italy

SPONSOR PROSPECTUS

The INSTabilities & Thresholds in ANTArctica (INSTANT) Scientific Research Programme provides a co-ordinating framework that will augment other important international research initiatives and consortia.

INSTANT aims to quantify the Antarctic ice sheet contribution to past to future sea-level change, from improved understanding of atmosphere, ocean and solid Earth interactions and feedbacks, so that decision-makers can better anticipate and assess the risk in order to manage and adapt to sea-level rise and evaluate mitigation pathways.

This international conference aims to bring together researchers across the geo-, physical, biological and social sciences interested in understanding the interactions between the ocean, atmosphere, solid Earth and the Antarctic Ice Sheet (AIS) and their global consequences.

The priority focus is on improving knowledge of the key rate determining processes, instabilities and potential irreversibilities that affect the mass change of the AIS and its contribution to past, present and future global sea-level.

About SCAR INSTANT

INSTANT is a scientific research program supported by the international Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research (SCAR, www.scar.org) that operates for the Antarctic Treaty. INSTANT was founded in 2021 and involves a large international scientific community, counting over 300 international scientists at various career levels from 42 different countries.

About OGS

The Italian National Institute of Oceanography and Applied Geophysics – OGS is a public research institute funded by the Ministry of University and Research (MUR). Polar sciences is one of the main scientific missions of OGS. OGS has run more than 15 polar expeditions in the Arctic and Antarctica over the past 35 years. The Institute owns an ice breaker Research Vessel, named Laura Bassi, and actively contributes to the SCAR research programs leadership.
